

A person in a dark hoodie is seen from behind, looking out over a cityscape at sunset. The sky is filled with large, golden clouds, and the sun is low on the horizon, casting a warm glow over the scene. In the background, there are buildings and a bridge over a body of water.

ALLERGY THEATRE

CLOUD THE SPOTTER

a play by Michael J. Harnett

Thomas and his Nan live near the Five Lamps.

He's sixteen. She's almost seventy. She took him in after his mother died. He'd nowhere else to go.

Nan's in the early stages of dementia. Leaves the front door open. Loses her phone and her glasses. But Thomas doesn't worry.

Hasn't he just landed a part in a murder mystery film in Wicklow? Or has he? And shortly he'll be heading for Hollywood. And more! He'll be bringing Nan with him.

But reality strikes when Nan is caught with a kettle under her coat in Dunnes. And she can't remember her name.

The rest of the family want Nan put away. But Nan won't be separated from her grandson. And he feels the same about her.
